Fire Investigations

EXCLUSIVE: New developments in Harris Ranch arson case

According to the affidavit, an unknown cutting tool was used to break a security fence at Harris Ranch. The main item seized in Southern California was an 18-inch pair of black and gray Stanley bolt cutters. Capozzi calls it a major development...detectives can analyze bolt cutters in much the same way they examine the striations on bullets to match a gun to the shots it fired.

Arson Trials

Angelo Reyes Jr., convicted of arson, maintains innocence

He had invited a New Haven Register reporter and a photographer into his home so he could tell his side of the story and try to show he was the “fall guy” who had been “framed.” This invitation is highly unusual behavior for someone who has been convicted but not yet sentenced.

BSU students investigate arson

Two dorm rooms caught on fire Tuesday, and one room sustained major damage. Investigators suspect arson, but the bandits responsible remain unknown at this time. In fact, the culprits won't be known until the end of Ball State University's current semester. The fires were set intentionally but it was all part of a new arson investigation class offered at the school.
